

August 26, 2011

MOVING THE UNIVERSE STORY

“Thomas Berry used to tell me, ‘Our work is to teach the story to the artists. Only when the artists tell the story will the world be transformed.’”
Brian Swimme

Movement As Medicine: The Embodied Cosmology Project An Evening of Evolutionary StoryTelling

Friday, August 26th 7:00-9:30pm
First United Methodist Church, Pittsburgh, PA $15-$25
Corner of Aiken, Baum and Centre

Moving The Universe Story is a captivating love story, a prayerperformance in six acts that joins the poetry of science together with dance and storytelling to illuminate our 13.7 billion year journey of mystery and creativity. Please arrive just before 7pm.

Grounding into Your Cosmological Self Saturday, August 27th from 1-5pm, $35

In this creative space, we will explore the Movement As Medicine: The Embodied Cosmology Project map of human development, calling forth our Cosmological Self as the grounding for a mutually enhancing world. We will explore personal and collective embodiment practices, moving explorations of the Universe Story, and pair work. This work is intended to bring to life the creativity flowing through you, activate the group intelligence and deepen our experience of being alive in a generative cosmos. Please email Rebecca by Aug 26 to register: rebecca@movementasmedicine.com. No previous experience necessary.

Sponsored by

